The Spice Master is a style of cuisine first made famous hundreds of years ago by the Mughal Empire. The skill of blending only the finest Indian Spices to produce a variety of subtle flavours has been passed on through generations. Its popularity over the centuries has grown and it has for many years been famous through India and Bangladesh.

Now this unique style of cooking is available for you to enjoy. We have been successfully trading over the past 25 years in East London, Sutton and Buckinghamshire, South Croydon, North London and have now extended our experience to Belvedere Kent, Sturry in Canterbury and Harlowin Essex. Come and see for yourself - we offer a warm friendly service and first class cuisine.

We are proud to offer you our unique style of cooking. A meal at Spice Master means accomplished cooking.

The art of cooking and blending spices and herbs has been passed on through family tradition and home cooking. But many gourmets are wondering about clean kitchens and risk - free food. Appreciating the importance of clean premises, good food and healthy diet, we have taken and completed a food hygiene course and have professional food handlers .

This is why Spice Master for many people, remains the symbol of India and Bangladesh.

Funding cut threat to project

A CHARITY scheme which has By LOUISE SASSOON helped thousands of disadvantaged people in Harlow for 20 years is this week teetering on the brink of closure due to a massive funding cut.

Rainbow Services saw its Harlow Council grant slashed from £102,000 to £70,000 on Thursday, meaning it can no longer afford to run its acclaimed Re-Use Project and may have to let 25 volunteers and three part-time staff go.

Executive director Jackie Sully is currently trying to salvage the future of the scheme, which gives help to families, individuals and elderly residents who cannot afford to furnish their accommodation and who are usually at their most desper-

"To say this is heartbreaking is the understatement of the year," she said. "I have a couple of irons in the fire and I can't predict what is going to happen but I'm looking to see if something [of the News Editor project] can be saved."

Mrs Sully said the charity might have to quit the Latton Bush Business Centre for good on March 31.

"I won't stop being hopeful until the day we close the door," she said, "but you can't run a service on fresh air."

One user, who wished to remain anonymous, relied heavily on the service's sup-port when she left her violent partner and said she was shocked at the development.

"If it wasn't for them I would have been sitting on the floor. They have helped out so many people in situations like mine. There must be something somebody can

The Rainbow Services funding cut was one of several inflicted as the council drastically reduced its overall grant aid from almost £300,000 to £105,000.

Trio convicted of 'phone row' attack on man

THREE people involved in an attack on a young man in Harlow face jail after being found guilty of conspiring to commit grievous bodily harm. Amy Boorman (25) formerly of The Hides, Harlow, and Laura Crooks (19), of Longbanks, Harlow, wept in the dock at Chelmsford Crown Court on Tuesday after the jury delivered verdicts against them and Jack Boorman (20), from Chelmsford.

Victim Tyson Hale suffered multiple stab wounds, facial injuries and a broken nose in the attack which followed telephone conversations – one with Amy Boorman – during which he was said to have been abusive.

Prosecuting, David Holborn said that after the incident on July 4 last year, Crooks had cleaned a knife used to stab Mr Hale and had thrown a belt used to "strangle" him onto the roof of a building. However, she was cleared in respect of acts tending or intending to pervert the course of justice.

During the trial, he said Mr Hale had made a call to Amy Boorman after he had been abusive to another female who had phoned him on her phone. When he had called the number back, it was answered by Amy Boorman.

Mr Holborn said she was upset by him, told her brother she was threatened and encouraged him to attack Mr Hale.

Detailing the injuries Mr Hale received, Mr Holborn said he later required surgery.

None of the three testified at the hearing but said the evidence against them was "all lies".

They were all remanded in custody until April 6 for presentence reports.

Tory Sure Start threat warning

CHILDREN'S centres in Harlow could close if the Conservatives took power nationally, according to local MP Bill Rammell.

He claimed the Tories would wipe £200m from the Sure Start scheme budget if they took office and said local children's centres including The Meadows and Tree House could shut.

"The Labour Government will keep investing in Sure Start because the early years of a child's life are so important – I don't want to put that at risk by letting the Conservatives cut Sure Start," he said.

GRIEVING father Terry Lubbock said he has won the battle but not the war against Essex Police after a report revealed significant failings in the investigation into the death of his son Stuart.

And the pensioner said the 150page document compiled by the Independent Police Complaints Commission (IPCC) might give him sufficient ammunition to start legal proceedings against the force after it was revealed that two pieces of potentially vital evidence went missing during the initial inquiry.

initial inquiry.

Speaking to the Star at his home in Great Brays after the report was released on Tuesday – nearly eight years after his son's death – Mr Lubbock said: "I feel like a corner has been turned but we still have to keep going to uncover the facts."

The IPCC upheld six of Mr Lubbock's 36 complaints against Essex Police about the initial investigation into the death of Stuart (31), who died after he was discovered in the swimming pool of Michael Barrymore's Roydon home following a party in 2001. The TV star and two others were

The TV star and two others were arrested in June 2007 on suspicion of serious sexual assault and murder but were later released without charge.

Nobody has ever been charged with the death and the investigation is still on-going.

The IPCC report states the scene was not effectively preserved, unauthorised people were allowed to stay at the scene and blood found on boxer shorts, towels and a robe was not investigated promptly.

It also discovered two potentially crucial pieces of evidence – a swimming pool thermometer which appears in photographs of the scene and a detached door handle – went missing and were never found by police, meaning they could not be

Petrol station staff shocked by 'gun' raid

SHOCKED staff at a Harlow petrol station were left shaken after a man burst in waving what appeared to be a firearm and demanded cash.

The intruder threatened staff at the BP garage, in London Road, before fleeing towards Epping with £100 at about midnight on Friday.

A BP spokeswoman said: "Staff were obviously very shaken by the incident but no-one was injured and they are returning to work as usual."

● RICHARD Satchell (39), of Doulton Close, Harlow, appeared before Harlow magistrates on Monday charged with robbery, failure to stop at the scene of an accident and possession of an imitation firearm. He was committed for trial at Chelmsford Crown Court and remanded in custody until May 18.

Spin king Ben hits the decks for town teens

By LOUISE SASSOON News Editor sassoonl@hertsessexnews.co.uk

A DJ is hoping to turn the tables on the hoodie haters by launching a weekly club night in Harlow for under-18s.

Ben Savell, aka DJ BenGee, is starting the venture at the Latton Bush Centre after becoming concerned that the town's teenagers have nowhere to go to enjoy themselves.

And he hopes it will provide a platform for up-and-coming talents to showcase their own work by encouraging them to get involved in spinning records and singing.

Ben (29), pictured right, of Ram Gorse, Harlow, said: "There are a Gorse, Harlow, said: "There are a couple of reasons I decided to set this up. Firstly I have a 14-year-old cousin and he is a good kid but I wanted to do something to help keep him out of trouble.

"Secondly, I have been a nightclub DJ for 10 years and wanted to do something more rewarding than entertaining drunk people."

Ben has been spinning the discs at various clubs including Storm in London. He is confident his mix of sounds – including r'n'b, hip hop, grime and house – is sure to appeal to his target audience.

And the message he is putting out is that the event is strictly no weapons, no drinking, no drugs and no attitudes.

The night is exclusively for 13-17 year-olds and launches for the first time on Friday, March 6. If successful, the weekly sessions could take on a different format which could see local youngsters proferer.

Ben said: "What I want to do is start involving local DJs and young people who are starting out DJing or singing to use it as a platform.

"I think there is a hole in the market for a night like this. Liquid do it in the half term but that is only for certain weeks in the year. There's nothing for kids to do but hang out on the streets."

Tickets for the night cost £5 and doors open at 7pm. For more information log onto the website at www.myspace.com/hoodiesball.

Teacher in training for her London Marathon dream

TEACHER Vanessa Darley is preparing to take on her dream challenge by running the Flora London Marathon to raise money for St Clare Hospice.

Vanessa (35), who teaches art at Harlow's Mark Hall School and is currently in training for the event, is a member of the St Clare Marathon Team 2009.

"My pupils are monitoring my progress and making sure I am in the gym or out running when I am supposed to be," she said

"With the backing and encouragement of the pupils and staff, I have every faith I will complete it and fulfil my dream of completing the London Marathon."

Tracy Meale, events fundraiser at St Clare, said: "We are behind our marathon team 100 per cent as they take on a physical challenge of a lifetime but also raise much-needed funds for the important work of our hospice.

"Some of our runners have been personally touched by our work while others just want to do their bit to support this local charity.

"Our team this year is made up of people with many different jobs and backgrounds and it's great to hear that the whole school is behind Vanessa. I am so grateful to the whole team for taking this on and for doing it for us." IN brief

THE Harlow branch of the Royal Air Forces Association has thanked generous shoppers who gave £1,425 to the Wings Appeal during two recent collections at the Tesco stores in Church Langley and Edinburgh Way. The money will be used to support veterans who have been affected by conflict.

YEEEHA! Weekly line dancing lessons are being held on Wednesday nights at St Stephen's Church Hall in Tawneys Road, Harlow. The lessons take place from 7.30-10pm. Dancers can simply turn up on the night or, for more information, call (0108) 722956.

A SERIES of Lent lunches are being held in Epping to help raise money for Christian Aid. Each Saturday the charity will be hosting afternoon events at the town's churches, offering light lunches of soup, cheese, bread and tea or coffee.

The first lunch is being held at Immaculate Conception Hall in Church Hill, Epping, from 12.30-2pm on March 7.

Flipping their lids for pancake race fun!

FLIPPING egg! A four-strong 'Naked Chefs' team from Harlow College narrowly beat the police 'Pancake Patrol' in Harlow's Shrove Tuesday Pancake Races.

Seven teams ran flat out to flip their pancakes around a makeshift course in Market Square on Tuesday in a bid to win gold, silver and bronze awards presented by Harlow Council chairman Tony Hall.

A second college team, 'Truly Cream', came a close third and others in the race included St Clare Hospice volunteers, a team from McDonalds and two others from the college.

The event, organised by the Harlow Town Centre Partnership with the support of Pitney Bowes and the Key Cutting Kiosk in The Rows, was the first to be held in the town for more than 20 years and raised £125 for St Clare Hospice.

Paper would end threat of homes

PLANS to build thousands more By LOUISE SASSOON homes in and around Harlow could be scrapped if the Tories come to power, it was claimed this week.

Under controversial blueprints drawn up under the East of England Plan (EEP), the area is set to shoehorn in 16,000 more homes by 2021 – 10,000 of which are proposed on land to the north of the town.

News Editor

sassoonl@hertsessexnews.co.uk

The controversial plan was formally endorsed by the Government last year despite massive opposition from campaigners. It is currently subject to a legal challenge.

But the proposals could be shelved under a Conservative Green Paper intended to give power back to local communities.

Conservative

Parliamentary candidate Robert Halfon believes the paper would spell the end of the housing plan.

"Time and time again, local people contact me worried about the Government's plans to concrete over our Green Belt with thousands of extra houses," he said this week.

"That is why it is good news that David Cameron has announced that the Government's housing targets will be scrapped, alongside unelected and costly regional assemblies like the one in the East of England [the East of England Regional Assembly].

"The Conservative view is that local people should decide where extra housing goes, not faceless bureaucrats or Gordon Brown."

Nigel Clark of STOP Harlow North, which supports the legal challenge from Hertfordshire County Council, said he is pleased by the Conservative stance.

"We welcome support from all political stances," he said. "I saw the report earlier this week and it states it would revoke the EEP – it would be deleted – and they would allow people to get involved with local development.
"We welcome the approach from the Conservatives but we would have preferred if the current government would have put its faith in local communities, as it often professes to do."

Danvers is trying to duck blame

SIR, Mike Danvers just doesn't get it (Letters, February 12) – it was his Labour Party, together with their partners in crime the Liberal Democrats, who are directly responsible for the difficult actions being forced upon Harlow Council.

When a councillor, he was tasked to look at the council's books to make sure that the money was being wisely spent and that the council's future commitments were being properly funded. Regrettably, all the Labour/Lib Dem administration did was to ensure that the coffers were empty. The incoming Conservative council was bequeathed the pathetic sum of £89,000 and bills that we could not pay.

Equally shocking was that they had borrowed huge sums of money from lenders but had made no provision to pay them back.

To compound their follies, they also raided the council's reserves and spent money that was conditional upon asset sales that never took place. This is scandalous and Mr Danvers, together will all the Labour and Lib Dem councillors, should apologise to the people of Harlow.

Only last week, an independent report slammed the outgoing administration for their poor financial and management performance. Not only are they in denial about their involvement and responsibility, they had the cheek to spin the story that the report was a critique of the new Conservative administration.

Clearly, the actions being taken now are the fault of Labour and Liberal Democrat councillors and their sheer incompetence when running the council. They will not be allowed to get away with pretending it had "nothing to do with me, guv".

It now falls on the Conservatives to steer the council through these difficult times and to make sure that not only the books balance but that we engage the brain when opening the council's cheque book. We will not spend money we do not have and we will only borrow money we can afford to pay back. This is called being responsible. If Mr Danvers had behaved likewise, welfare rights would not have been subject to a reduction in its budget.

Councillor Lee Dangerfield Berecroft, Harlow

SIR, I felt I had to respond to some of the inaccuracies and scaremongering in Councillor Mark Wilkinson's letter (Star, February 12).

He once again claimed that refuse collections would be once a fortnight but, as he is fully aware, the collection of food waste will remain weekly. The only fortnightly collection will be for dry waste and recycling.

He claims that councillors were given overwhelming evidence during the recent call-in of the welfare rights and advice budget decision that they did not have enough information to make a decision. What he has conveniently forgotten to mention is that at that very meeting, his group's representative was asked if she had the information given to her. She said yes, and when asked if it had been passed onto her successor on the working party, she said no. So they did have all the information to hand, but had failed to actually pass it on.

He claims that we have turned the oncefree rat-catching service into a £45 service. What he fails to mention is that if a resident is on benefits it would only be £11, and if the rat was nesting on councilowned communal land then it would be free. Oh, and he conveniently forgot to mention that it was his administration that introduced a charge for the clearing of mice last year!

It is very easy to be critical of an administration when you are in opposition. I know we were, but at least we were honest with the facts. As the administration in Harlow, we have kept to that creed, even to the extent of briefing the press and public as to what is going on. That is something his administration, with its penchant for secrecy, never did.

Because of the Labour and Liberal Democrat 'spend now and pay later' policy – raiding the reserves and even using ring-fenced funds for items they were never meant to be used for – we have been left with no money and have had to make some hard decisions to balance the books. At least through the whole of this painful exercise we have kept the residents of Harlow fully informed. I wonder if councillor Wilkinson would have or would he have just sprung it on us at the last minute like he did with the leisure centres a couple of years ago?

Councillor Nick Churchill Brockles Mead, Harlow

HWRA is so vital

SIR, I am writing as a former Harlow resident, and especially as a former member of staff of the Welfare Rights and Advice Service.

I am appalled at the destructive and unconscionable cuts to the town's services as proposed by the Conservatives. This action threatens great harm to Harlow and to its people.

I wish to express the strongest support for my former colleagues and my shock and anger at the way in which they are being treated. The service provides essential support to people who otherwise would have none and it is not a job that can be done on the cheap.

Harlow as a whole benefits from the work of HWRA – amongst other things, its people claim their rights, they make correct and complete benefit claims, they secure their entitlements to housing and they keep their jobs by getting protection against unfair dismissal. Not least, they are helped to manage what are sometimes severe debt problems.

The council itself gains from this work; people are advised and enabled by HWRA to pay priority debts such as their rent and council tax and to pay off their arrears. Repossessions, evictions and the high costs of homelessness are avoided and the council gets vital revenues. Important and useful work, I think!

This is no time to make shortsighted cuts to a service such as HWRA. In the current situation, Harlow's people are going to need them more than ever.

Andrew Dutton High Peak, Derbyshire

Listen to town

SIR, Harlow's Conservativecontrolled council came to power on the wings of a national backlash against the Labour Government following years of Gordon Brown's stealth taxes and the spinning of Tony Blair.

Unfortunately, our Conservative representatives have adopted secrecy, deafness to Harlow's wants and now their own stealth tax in the form of proposed charges for using the local car parks at The Stow, Bush Fair, Old Harlow and even in the Town Park.

It is clear to me that Harlow residents do not want a wheelie bin waste collection system. They do not want to see the privatisation of the crematorium and they certainly do not want the services of the advice centre decimated. Also, I trust that residents and businesses do not want charges imposed on their local parking.

The Conservatives may hear but they do not listen. Instead we are told on the one hand that costs must be cut yet on the other that large sums must be spent on the hated wheelie bins. I believe most Harlow residents are proud of the town with its green spaces, woodlands and mostly neat and colourful gardens. The strapline of Harlow renaissance is "Harlow – See The Difference". One of the differences is front gardens unspoilt by the wheelie bins which despoil many other towns.

Driven to distraction by abusive bus ride

SIR, One morning earlier this month, my daughter returned home in tears after an Arriva bus driver refused to allow her to board as a child's fare.

She was not in possession of ID, in particular a student card for children who are over 14 (she is 13 so does not possess such a card).

She thought the driver was rude and felt thoroughly upset. I telephoned the company's customer complaints and asked them to look into the matter.

Returning home from a trip to the town centre the following day, she spotted the driver who she pointed out to me. I approached the driver to let them know that, if they saw my daughter in the future, she was 13 to avoid further confusion. What a foolish mistake that was! I found myself faced with a ranting, blinkered individual who had no regard for what I was saying, how my daughter felt or whether or not there was a public audience.

A leaflet (travel for 14-plus students) was thrust into my hand and the driver regaled us with the tale of how my daughter had sworn in front of a busload of passengers and then hopped on a further bus with her mates, laughing and pointing. I drove my daughter into the town once she had returned home in tears, so I could not understand this at all. She certainly hadn't hopped onto any alternative bus.

After I stated that my daughter did not swear (this is a girl who still asks to leave the dinner table), the driver exploded into a rant and told me that I did not know what my daughter did behind my back. Anyone who knows my daughter knows what a kind and considerate person she is and I have never heard her swear or treat anyone in this way.

We then boarded the bus to take us home and were subjected to a public forum that this conversation had been turned into, with the driver asking several onlookers how old they thought my daughter was. We paid for our tickets as people laughed at our expense.

When I asked the driver to desist from talking about us I was ignored, forcing me to reveal that I had made a complaint the previous day. Like a red rag to a bull, the driver proceeded to talk about us in a loud manner as we sat on the bus and endured what was a very embarrassing and cringe-worthy journey. We continued until we decided to cut short our journey and walk the remainder of the way, at which point my daughter burst into tears again, being fearful of getting on the bus next time and at a loss as to understand the ferocity of the driver's insults.

Needless to say, I have telephoned Arriva and await a full apology but still remain confused as to whose age is the actual issue here and why on earth this individual sought to question our values as a family in such a public way?

R. Court Paddock Mead, Harlow

But let us not forget that our councillors volunteer to do a job most of us do not want. They need our help and guidance to get them beyond party dogma.

We must not be silent on the way our council is run. Please keep in contact with your councillors of whatever political persuasion and, hopefully, we can achieve and maintain the town and quality of life its residents want.

P.J. Powell Spring Close, Harlow

Over-charged

SIR, If Harlow Council goes ahead with its plan to fit meters in the car park near Tye Green Bowls Club, it will be too expensive for hundreds of senior citizens.

It will prevent them from getting a little exercise and stop them from socialising.

G,. Morgan Woodcroft, Harlow

Road madness

SIR, Some politicians have argued for massive housing growth in and around Harlow from now to 2021. It has been a feature of their rhetoric that "infrastructure should be provided before or at the same time as the housing". I am sure most people would agree, as the existing roads in Harlow are at capacity, especially during peak periods. The recent submission by Essex County Council for regional funding for transport improvements argues that a bypass is needed to unlock/deliver these new developments. Sadly, the same submission is based on a construction start date of 2021 – after all, the houses are meant to have been built.

Nigel Clark Secretary, STOP Harlow North High Street, Hunsdon

Lane is lunacy

SIR, It would seem to me that the lunatics at Essex County Council have taken over the asylum. What idiot planned the First Avenue bus lane?

Going into the town centre is a nice bus lane. But coming out of the town, they have put two bus stops in the main lane, thereby causing congestion as the traffic can't get past.

They have done away with the underpass and put in more traffic lights, again causing congestion. On another matter, Harlow's Conservative council has ignored the people of Harlow and paid out large sums of money on wheelie bins which no-one wants as well as closing down vital amenities for the elderly and charging for car parks. And, like the bankers, they have given themselves large rises which deputy council leader Simon Carter says they have to pay to keep the top people. What qualifications do these top people have?

Roll on the elections and let's get rid of the idiots.

Budget 'an attack' on the vulnerable

By CHRIS MOSS mossc@hertsessexnews.co.uk

HARLOW Council's first Conservative budget is an "unprecedented attack" on the town's most vulnerable and needy, opposition councillors have claimed. Branded a "slash-and-burn"

Branded a "slash-and-burn" exercise by Liberal Democrats and "heartless" by Labour, the controversial cost-cutting plans were forced through by the ruling Tories at a heated full council meeting on Thursday.

On a long night of political sniping

On a long night of political sniping and circular debate, furious residents brandishing placards packed the public gallery to oppose the sweeping service cuts.

A petition of more than 7,000 names was presented by Friends of Harlow Welfare Rights and Advice, while sheltered housing tenants demanded clarity about the uncertain future of their homes.

But their concerns fell on deaf ears as the administration ploughed ahead with plans to slash Harlow Welfare Rights and Advice's budget by 82 per cent, restrict access to the Leah sheltered housing schemes and increase its share of the council tax by an inflation-busting 3.9 per cent.

Blaming the cuts on financial pressures caused by the recession and an alleged £10m black hole inherited from the previous Labour/Liberal Democrat administration, deputy council leader Simon Carter claimed the budget would stabilise the authority's rocky finances.

£93.34

£2.182.44

£3,021.84

"When we took over we faced a total disaster," he insisted. "Finances in crisis, back-office services in a mess, no money, no usable reserves, rising energy prices, record levels of inflation – and then a recession.

"This could be called a repair budget, one that is designed to get our finances in order."

Former Labour group leader Tony Durcan proposed an alternative budget, which would have safeguarded threatened services by axing unpopular plans to introduce wheelie bins and dipping again into council reserves, arguing the tough economic climate required a "serious budget made by serious people".

"I can't work out whether this budget has been set in arrogance or ignorance," he said. "Look at all the members of the public here tonight. Do the Tories care about them? Have they listened to them? The answer is clearly 'no'."

Dismissing claims that inherited problems made cuts inevitable, Liberal Democrat leader Chris Millington told the Tories to "stop whingeing" and accept responsibility.

"This tired mantra must be given up," he said. "The Liberal Democrat/Labour administration faced equally severe financial problems in last year's budget but still managed to make adequate savings while protecting frontline services."

Star comment

AS the recession hungrily sinks its teeth into the local economy, causing unemployment to rocket and home repossessions to rise, setting a balanced council budget to effectively deal with today's overwhelming economic pressures is no easy task.

But very few will have any sympathy left for Harlow Council's Conservative administration in the wake of the most controversial cost-cutting, service-slashing budget the town has ever seen.

By ignoring massive public opposition to their plans to cut funding to Harlow Welfare Rights and Advice, including a petition signed by almost as many people as voted them in last May, the Tories may well have committed political suicide in a town they have been desperate to run for years.

And as those who attended the stormy full council meeting on Thursday will doubtless testify, the way in which certain Tory councillors conducted themselves on the most important night in the authority's calendar was puerile, farcical and plain arrogant.

With comments ranging from the cringeworthy (Russell Perrin's likening of Labour members Mark Wilkinson and Jean Clark to "Paul Daniels and Debbie McGee") and bizarre (Muriel Jolles' rant about minced beef) to the shameful (Joshua Jolles' branding HWRA as a "holy cow"), the Conservatives seemed intent on blaming their budget's shortcomings on everyone but themselves.

In fact, it was left to a man not averse to playing to the public gallery himself, former council leader Tony Durcan, to hit the nail on the head when he said local governance should be the preserve of "serious people".

On this evidence, the Tories had better wipe the smirks from their faces and grow up fast if they are to have any hope of winning around an increasingly disillusioned public.

Man assaulted his mother in row over loan

A HARLOW man beat his mother after she refused to give him money, a court heard. Hard-up Kieran Hancock (22), of Abbotsweld, also threw a kerbstone through the rear window of Pauline Hancock's car, causing £150 worth of damage, Harlow magistrates heard on Monday

Hancock pleaded guilty to a charge of assault by beating and another of criminal damage. He was released on conditional bail until next month, pending the preparation of a probation

The court heard unemployed Hancock visited his grandmother's home in Brockles Mead, Harlow, on the afternoon of February 22 to ask his visiting mother Pauline for money When she refused to hand over any cash, he slapped her in the face and pushed her before going outside and vandalising her Peugeot. He then went back inside the house and kicked his mother in the leg.

Magistrates banned Hancock from contacting both his mother and grandmother, Margaret Grafton, until he returns to court

Mr Halfon has always been strongly opposed to a second runway at airport and last year warned the increase in passengers and flight numbers was a "Trojan horse" for the plan to be pushed through.

Speaking this week after learning that BAA has put back the planned runway opening date by two year assuming permission is granted – until 2017, Mr Halfon said: "Passenger numbers have been falling and this just underlines what many of us have been saying all along, that a second runway is not needed and unviable.

Previously, Harlow Council and MP Bill Rammell have welcomed the airport's growth, although both stressed they are also against a second runway.

The New Labour Government has once again broken with a past commitment and is proposing to sell Royal Mail to the Dutch company TNT. As recently as 2005 and 2008 their party committed itself NOT to privatise the company. In 2005 their election manifesto stated:

"Our ambition is to see a publicly owned Royal Mail fully restored to good health providing customers with an excellent service and its employees with rewarding

In June 2008 their National Policy Forum noted that New Labour: "... had set out a vision of a wholly publicly-owned, integrated Royal Mail Group in good health, providing customers with an excellent service ..."

Later that year this statement was then endorsed at the Labour Party

The report drawn up by Lord Hooper failed to analyse the operation and employment practice of Royal Mail's European competitors and, in doing so, gives an unbalanced opinion of Royal Mail's overall performance and its relationship with its employees

Any privatisation of Royal Mail will affect everyone. Royal Mail will no longer provide a non-profit service. It will be a company solely driven by profit and we have seen what this has done for the customers of other former national companies that have been privatised, such as British Gas, water and electricity.

More than 139 MPs have already signed an Early Day motion against any privatisation of Royal Mail.

Council kicks family out onto the streets

A SINGLE mum and her By CHRIS MOSS two young sons face being thrown onto the streets after council housing chiefs refused to re-home them following their eviction from a privately rented property.

Jo Groom (38) and sons
Samuel (13) and William (9) will be kicked out of temporary accommodation in Old Harlow on March 10 after housing officers decided Harlow Council has no duty to house them.

Miss Groom had used money from the sale of the house she jointly owned with her ex-husband to rent a private property in Station Road, but fell into arrears with the landlord after being forced to take sick leave from her job at a bakery due to depression.

She was put in temporary accommodation in January while the council investigated her circumstances.

Now the mum-of-three whose daughter Rosie lives with her father in Ware - claims she cannot afford to return to the primossc@hertsessexnews.co.uk vate sector and is terrified Social Services will attempt to take her sons away if she is made homeless.

"I have never asked anything of Harlow Council in my entire life," a tearful Miss Groom told the Star. "For the council to turn around to me and refuse to give me any help or advice on what I'm supposed to do when me and my kids are made homeless is very hard to take."

Harlow MP Bill Rammell, who has been lobbying the council to reconsider its position on rehousing the family, added: "I have made it clear to the council that I believe it should accept a duty to house Miss Groom and the children and I am frustrated that they continue to refuse to do so.

A council spokesman refused to comment on Miss Groom's situation but said of such cases: "If we feel there is evidence their income was sufficient to afford the rent payments but they have not made them then, regrettably, we will have to refuse them permanent council accommodation."

Ward to close because it has outlived use

HOSPITAL chiefs are decommissioning a 27-bed ward at Princess Alexandra Hospital because they feel it has outlived its use.

John Snow and St Nicholas infection control unit is set to be closed after it was deemed surplus to requirements due to the facility's strict new infection control system, which bosses say makes it unnecessary for people to be treated in a dedicated unit.

PAH is leading the way in infection control and is being used as an example by the Government in a bid to ge others in the country to follow

The ward is also said to need work to bring it up to date from its past life as part of a dedicated children's ward.

Options for its future use including making the unit into single rooms to help increase single sex facilities at the hospital.

Staff will be re-located to other start will be re-located to other wards and it is hoped a new pilot scheme dubbed the 'virtual ward' which enables patients to be treated from home will help overcome the immediate loss of

A PAH spokesman said the loss of beds will be a short-term situation but conceded if plans to introduce single rooms in the area goes ahead there could be a reduction in beds.

Cervical screening takes just minutes and could save your life West Essex

Women are reminded that a ten-minute appointment at their GP surgery or family planning clinic for a 'smear test' could save their life.

Cervical screening (smear test) is not a test for cancer but for pre-cancerous changes in the cervix which left untreated may go on to develop into cervical cancer.

The main symptoms of cervical cancer are unusual bleeding from the vagina. bleeding This includes between periods, bleeding after sex or any bleeding in post-menopausal women. Other symptoms may include a vaginal discharge that unpleasant, or discomfort or pain during sex.

NHS West Essex public health director Alison Cowie

NHS West Essex public health director Alison Cowie said: "If you are invited for a test please attend. Having a test is a simple procedure. It will only take a few minutes and could prevent you from developing complications in the future.

"Your test results will be with you in a matter of weeks. The vast majority of women who are screened have absolutely nothing wrong but it is better to be safe than sorry."

Most women who have a smear test have a normal result. Some women's tests will show they have changes in the cells of their cervix. This is known as an abnormal result which means the laboratory has found some cell changes that may need further investigation. Often the changes may be due to inflammation or infection.

Early detection and treatment can prevent 75 per cent of cancers developing but like other screening tests it is not perfect. It may not always detect early cell changes that could lead to cancer.

About 1 in 20 women have a test result that shows some abnormality. It is important to remember that it is extremely rare for an abnormality found at screening to be cancer.

Reduce the risk of cervical cancer

Many women who develop cervical cancer have never been screened. The best thing you can do is go for a smear test.

There are a number of things you can do to reduce your risk of getting cervical cancer.

Stop smoking

Women who smoke are twice as likely to develop cervical cancer as non-smokers because the chemicals in cigarettes can affect cells in the cervix.

The NHS offers free local support that really works. For more details, ring the stop smoking service on 01279 827866.

One of the risk factors for cervical cancer is having sex at an early age or having many sexual partners. If you are having sex - use a condom.

Cervical screening policy

Within the NHS cervical screening programme in England, women aged 25 to 49 are invited for free cervical screening every three years, and women aged 50 to 64 every five years.

Women aged over 65 are invited if their previous three tests were not clear or if they have never been screened.

Cervical cancer is very rare in women under 25 and extensive research has found that screening these women often does more harm than good.

Women in this age group can have natural and harmless changes in their cervix as their body develops. In most cases these resolve themselves without any need for treatment. Screening these women causes them anxiety when they have to go for unnecessary tests.

Any women under 25 who are concerned about their risk of developing cervical cancer or their sexual health, should contact their GP or Genito-Urinary Medicine (GUM) clinic.

Professor Mike Richards, national cancer director, said: "We have evidence that cervical screening saves around 4,500 lives each year.

"We have been able to improve the screening programme by introducing new technology.

"The good news about cervical cancer is that we can pick it up, even before it becomes a cancer and that's why screening is so important."

"I was shocked to see that Monday morning - it looked quite bad."

A fire spokesman said crews were called to the property at about 10.40pm and found a fire which was confined to the porch.

He said the service had been informed there had been loud bangs heard coming from the property but confirmed it was due to burning aerosols.

Two fire engines were used to douse the flames and the fire was out shortly after

A 43-year-old Harlow woman was arrested on suspicion of arson with intent. She was released on police bail until June 1, pending further inquiries.

Future security of estate is still to be confirmed

RESIDENTS of a Harlow housing estate are still waiting for an official statement resolving concerns about the future of their homes, despite verbal assurances they are not at risk.

At a meeting with the Bishopsfield Residents' Association in December representatives from Harlow Council and East Thames Housing Association agreed to work together to issue an "urgent" statement to reassure residents regarding potential redevelopment plans to bring properties up to decent homes standards.

It was expected this would make clear there are no serious structural problems which would require the demolition of the estate.

But almost two months after the statement was due, no further information has been forthcoming. Long-term Bishopsfield resident Moira Jones told the Star: "People on the estate just want something official from the council to say their homes won't be demolished – is that really too much to ask?

"We were promised a statement back in December and we're still waiting. Until residents get that reassurance, they are going to remain unsettled and nervous about the future." Harlow MP Bill Rammell, who has been lobbying the council to give clear answers, said it was not right for people to be left in limbo. A council spokesman apologised for the delay but said the authority was waiting for information from East Thames Housing Association before updating residents on plans.

Friends doing their bit to raise cultural awareness

STEWARDS Best friends Nathalie Boakye and Shingi Chabva-Shoperai have been nominated for an award after setting up a group aimed at breaking down barriers within the school.

For the past three years the 16-year-olds, members of the school's Ethnic Minority Pupil Voice group, have been the brains behind an annual cultural food Nathalie, pictured left, of Brockles Mead, and Shingi, of Peterswood, have been shortlisted for a place in the final of Essex Police Young People of the Year competition which takes place next month.

Nathalie said: "When I joined Stewards the EMPV wasn't as big as it is now. Now we have about 50 members and hope that more people will join.

"I think it is so important to understand and respect different cultures. I thought people should know that everyone is capable of doing something with their lives, even if you don't come from the best background.'

Life on the homefront

POTTER STREET Pupils were taught about the Second World War and how local communities pulled togther during times of hardship when they took part in a week of themed activities.

These included a workshop for which the children dressed up and took part in singing and dancing along to The Lambeth Walk and Run Rabbit Run, and a writing competition with prizes for the winners.

Sounds of the drums

PETERSWOOD Children at the Paringdon Road primary got the chance to try their hand at drumming when they welcomed some African visitors to the school.

Pupils were treated to traditional music and learned about African culture during the event.

ADVICE BUREAU STILL NEEDED?

Is the Citizens' Advice Bureau still needed in Harlow or has it been superseded by the council-run Advice Centre. That was the question that underlined a discussion whether to grant Harlow CAB £11,853 for 1984-85 at Harlow Council's estates and general purposes committee.

AGREEMENT OVER REFUSE

Harlow's refuse problems look set to be over after an agreement between the council and dustmen. Both sides have accepted the findings of an independent study which said two extra men would need to be employed, increasing the number of loaders from 16 to 18.

RALLY AND THEN A STRIKE

Civil servants at six Harlow offices joined the half-day national strike in protest at the Government's refusal to lift a union ban at GCHQ Cheltenham. The strike followed a protest rally held in Harlow days before. Over 300 Harlow trade unionists gathered outside the Town Hall and condemned the Government's decision to ban unions at GCHQ.

BLAZE IN TESCO WAREHOUSE

Fire broke out on the second floor of Tesco's warehouse in the Harvey Centre, causing several hundred pounds worth of damage. About 300 toilet rolls were destroyed by the fire and

St Paul's 50 years of faithful service

TS modern style may not be to all tastes but iconic St Paul's church celebrates its 50th anniversary this year.

Even in 1959 when the swinging '60s were just around the corner, its modern and unique looks attracted quite a bit of attention from residents.

A reporter from the now-defunct Harlow Citizen attended the first service, which was held in January that year.

"As the candidates went up two by two for the laying on of the hands, the congregation had chance to admire the new church.

"The Bishop – in white, red, and black with a gold cross – stood in the centre of a building in which the keynotes were white-washed brick walls, red ceilings, black east wall with John Piper's mosaic and polished brass in the choir gallery and the Bishop's throne.

"Elsewhere there were splashes of bright blue and yellow, while the mosaic depicted its group of figures largely in various shades of green.

"Even the minor furnishings were colourful ..."

The service was addressed by the Bishop of Barking, who rebuffed criticism of the church from those who felt it should not be in the town centre because the area was uninhabited at the time, responding that it was a right and proper that a town centre should have a place of worship.

The church was consecrated in April that year and still serves the community today.

To celebrate its birthday, various events are being held including a service on March 8 which will be attended by the present Bishop of Barking, followed by a celebration lunch.

Mobile phone that charges from the sun

MANY of you will know how useful mobile phones can be for keeping in touch with friends and family, but what kind of weird and wonderful things will the phones of the future be used for?

Some of the answers could be found at the Mobile World Congress held in Spain last

Among the hundreds of innovative and unusual inventions on display at the gadget show were a number of eco-friendly designs including one phone which is made from recycled materials and runs on solar power.

The phone, which takes up to 14 hours in the sun to charge should be on sale in Europe

Another idea was the one-sizefits-all phone charger which will cut down on unnecessary waste and use less energy than standard chargers. For those who like to keep fit. there's The Wellness phone. It allows people to keep an eye on their health when they're out and about.

And budding DJs will no doubt be excited about a new music phone which can be used to mix tracks using an innovative touchscreen as a turntable. Finally, for people who are a little forgetful, there will soon be a mobile phone watch which you can wear on your wrist and link to a headset making it a little bit harder to lose than a normal standalone handset.

No sense in taking Weir as read

EXPECTATIONS were high for an evening of girlie fun with the quickwitted cynicism of Weir's critically acclaimed books mixed with a dash of Fast Show slapstick.

After poor ticket sales, the one-woman show was forced from the main auditorium to the more intimate Studio, which proved a godsend in disguise.

The smaller venue gave the mainly female audience a chance to really see the woman they all seem to have something in common with, whether they be neurotic, unhappy with their bodies or seem to have had to work just that little bit harder at life in order to succeed than most.

From the get-go, the mood was light and fun with a few good one-liners and an easy interaction with the audience which made it feel as though you were conversing with your best mate in a pub rather than a comedienne you don't have the pleasure of knowing personally. The tone was lifted again by Weir's effortless ability to muse over the simplest of things with her attentive audience – in this case it was the extraordinary amount of traffic lights in seemingly ridiculous places dotted along the A10 which she noticed on her journey to Harlow.

The focus then turned to two of her books, Does My Bum Look Big In This?: The Diary Of An Insecure Woman and Stupid Cupid.

It was at this point the volley of belly laughs was swapped for just a smattering of sniggers. As usual, the words were funny but it was the invisible barrier which had been created by the readings which made the first-class humour less funny and left me pondering what the purpose of the evening was. Had it been a reading from her anticipated new book, I could understand it – but to read chapters from those which had been on the shelves for years and already familiar to most of the audience made no sense. The evening ended on a high note with a halfhour Q&A after the interval, which gave ample opportunity to delve into the person rather than the work and I left with a smile mulling over Weir's most embarrassing moment.

MUSIC Who needs an expensive trip to the West End when you can immerse yourself in the sensational sounds of Frankie Valli & The Four Seasons at The Playhouse tomorrow (Friday)? They may not have quite the same box office pull as hit musical Jersey Boys, but top tribute act Let's Hang On promise to recreate some of the legendary quartet's finest moments, including Big Girls Don't Cry and Walk Like A Man. The show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £17.50 (£16 concessions) from (01279) 431945.

MUSIC Pop along to The Playhouse on Saturday to embark on a thrilling journey through America's rich musical heritage with hit songs from all-American greats including Bob Dylan, Bruce Springsteen and Johnny Cash performed by some of the UK's premier vocalists – including Doctor from Doctor & The Medics, The show begins at 7.30pm and tickets are £15.50 (£14.50 concessions) from (01279) 431945.

OPERA Arts-lovers are in for a real treat on Sunday when renowned operatic society Opera Della Luna stages a production of Strauss's Die Fledermaus at The Playhouse. The performance begins at 7.30pm and tickets are £14 (£13 concessions) from (01279) 431945.

MUSIC Roll back the years and indulge in a good old Cockney knees-up on Wednesday when hit show Roll Out The Barrel makes a welcome return to The Playhouse. Featuring a treasure chest of music hall favourites, Cockney sing-a-longs, wartime classics and the songs of Flanagan and Allen, this is a must for all pearly kings and queens! The show starts at 2.30pm and tickets cost £13 (£11 concessions).

Artist returns with a career retrospective

AN internationally-acclaimed artist whose experiences of life in Harlow inspired much of his finest work has made a triumphant return to the town with a new exhibition.

Graham Metson, who lived in the New Town during the 1950s, unveiled Metrospective to a 40strong gathering of art-lovers, local dignitaries and old friends at the Gibberd Gallery.

The exhibition is the first collection of Mr Metson's work to be put on show in Harlow since the 1970s. It charts his career from 1957 to his most recent paintings and explores the impact city-life has had on his work.

His experiences of living in London at the start of his career as well as his travels to cities worldwide have been a constant source of inspiration, informing his unique, energetic and expressive style.

His works on paper skilfully blend influences from British pop culture and comic books to create striking layered montages, while his more recent experiments with oil painting portray boldly-coloured, free-flowing figures in movement.

Born in east London, Metson moved to Harlow in the 1950s and established himself as a successful artist in the blossoming local arts community before going on to develop an international reputation in the USA and Canada, where he now lives.

Recalling his early years in Harlow, he said: "It was an amazing social experiment and attracted a great number of creative go-ahead people.

"They came together to form a new community; it was the perfect platform for an artist."

Metrospective runs at The Gibberd Gallery in the Civic Centre until March 21. Admission is free. Read the news as it breaks

Eastwood bows out of acting with a final fight certificate 15, running time 1h 55m

IN what reportedly will be his final appearance in front of a camera, Clint Eastwood delivers a tour-deforce performance as a xenophobic war veteran in this timely humanist drama.

While the rest of America looks to conflicts raging overseas, the veteran actor and director picks his thematic battles much closer to home.

In particular, he examines the clashes of ideals in predominantly white, blue-collar neighbourhoods, where the ethnic and cultural make-up has been irrevocably altered by the influx of immigrants.

This volatile mix of old and new, east and west, explodes with devastating consequences in Gran Torino, a powerful tale of modern day vigilantism based on a script by Nick Schenk.

At the emotional heart of the story is Walt Kowalski (Eastwood), a man haunted by his experiences in the Korean War and consumed by grief over the death of his

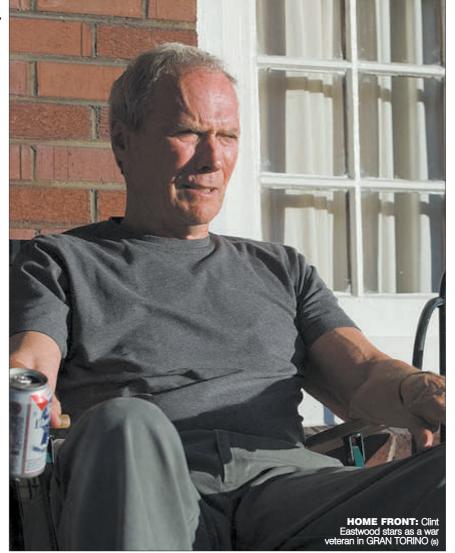

He is a man of few words, none of them kind, who harbours resentment towards everyone around him, including his sons and especially his Asian neighbours.

When a gang scraps with his neighbour's son Thao (Bee Vang) on his lawn, Walt intervenes with his rifle, but against the odds he finds himself warming to the boy and his family and even takes Thao under his wing, encouraging the lad to become the man of

However, the ousted gang have Walt and his protege in their sights and the only language they understand begins with the pull of a

Gran Torino is another beautifully crafted, deeply compassionate and timely piece of filmmaking from Eastwood, which provokes difficult moral questions about personal responsibility and sacrifice in a world riven by gang violence and peer pressure.

The veteran star is mesmerising as a curmudgeon who chews on political correctness and spits out the bones, chipping away at Walt's steely facade to reveal the rage and despair within.

Screenwriter Eric Warren Singer was inspired by the downfall of the Bank of Credit and Commercial International, which collapsed in 1991 just as UK and US legislators discovered details of arms dealings and money laundering.

From the seed of corporate shame blooms a fast-paced, action-packed work of fiction, pitting two ordinary people against a huge global machine with tentacles reaching into the upper echelons

Money speaks louder than principles - it controls global politics, drives people to commit desperate acts and finances terrorism and wars which leave entire nations clamouring for survival.

Interpol Agent Louis Salinger (Clive Owen, pictured above) uncovers evidence of serious infringements within one of the world's most powerful banks and resolves to bring the institution's boardroom to

However, the guilty are wise to the investigation and hire a hit man to eliminate this pesky thorn in their side. Joining forces with Manhattan assistant district attorney Eleanor Whitman (Naomi Watts), Louis follows the money around the world, travelling from Berlin and Milan to New York and Istanbul in the hope of gathering enough proof to expose the dodgy dealings.

CARNIVAL OF SOULS

(Network, 15, retail)

As with Charles Laughton and Night Of The Hunter, independent film-maker Herk Harvey directed just the one feature and yet knocked it out of the park first time, crafting an idiosyncratic movie which has both stood the test of time and proved to be a major

There really is nothing else quite like 1962's Carnival of Souls, an exercise in off-kilter mood and sustained unease which trusts its audience to ponder closely and figure out for themselves what's going on.

Mary (the ethereal Candace Hilligoss) is riding in a car with two friends when they re challenged to a race by a pair of hicks, who promptly run them off a bridge and into a river. The car and friends are lost in the current, but a bedraggled and dazed Mary pulls herself from the mud and into a subtly changed

Apparently recovered, she takes up a job as a church organist in Salt Lake City (the eerie flat landscape is another major plus) but steadily, and unwillingly, becomes evermore detached from her surroundings. Also, she has episodes where, without warning, she seems to become invisible to those around her and the world drifts away into uncanny silence.

A friendly psychiatrist tells her it's all due to grief and the shock caused by the accident, but that doesn't account for the apparition of a coldly grinning dead man (played with a chilling intensity by the director) which haunts her at random, nor for the dread fascination exerted on her by a derelict pleasure pavilion outside the city.

The sometimes stilted performances of the largely amateur cast only add to the alien atmosphere, perfectly complemented by Gene Moore's creepy organ soundtrack, while Harvey's cinematographer Maurice Prather made superb use of the shadowy, crumbling pavilion.

The film can be seen as a direct influence on George Romero's Night Of The Living Dead (and to judge from the scene of the dead rising from the water in 2005's Land Of The Dead, it still is) and its echoes can be felt in the work of David Lynch and films such

CITY OF EMBER

(Entertainment In Video, PG, retail)

Imagine the films of Terry Gilliam or Jean-Pierre Jeunet pitched at a family audience and you'll get some idea as to the visual invention of director Gil Kenan's delightful adventure.

Some 200 years ago, a subterranean city was built to ensure the survival of humanity in the face of some unspecified disaster. The means to escape when the time came due was entrusted to a series of mayors, but a break in the chain of command left the key lost and the populace struggling against the inevitable entropy of their system.

Time is now up, the last generator is failing regularly, food is running out and the incumbent mayor (another fine turn from Bill Murray) is more concerned with hoarding his own secret reserves: the city of Ember is slowly dying.

Ultimately, it falls to two fearless teens to unlock the mystery of how to return the population to the planet's surface.

Unfolding along the lines of the better kind of puzzlesolving video games (the Zelda series, for instance), throwing in unexplained phenomena such as giant moths and moles, and peppering a solid cast with such familiar faces as Tim Robbins, Toby Jones, Martin Landau and Mackenzie Crook, City Of Ember is one of those pleasingly old fashioned children's films that really is an equal joy for adults.

WATCH ME WHEN I KILL!

(Shameless Screen Entertainment, 18, retail)

Made in 1977 at the last gasp of the Italian giallo craze, Antonio Bido's stylish thriller is often unfairly dismissed as aping the works of genre master Dario Argento, particularly Deep Red and elements of his earlier 'animals' trilogy.

Certainly, the fabulous prog rock score by Trans Europa Express could easily be mistaken for the work of Argento soundtrack regulars Goblin, and then there's the familiar first-person gaze of the camera fetishising both victims and significant objects.

But in fairness, both directors are hugely influenced by Hitchcock and it's from this source their superficial similarities arise. Bido has his own style and it's arguably the more restrained and coherent of the two, bucking a lot of the giallo conventions on the way to an unexpected and satisfyingly serious-minded conclusion.

Stopping at a chemist's moments after the brutal murder of the proprietor, Mara (Paolo Tedesco) unwittingly hears the killer's voice. Marked for death as a possible witness, she enlists the help of Lukas (Corrado Pani) to crack the case independently while the assassin moves from one victim to the next, taunting them beforehand with phone calls comprising bizarre tape recordings of dogs and snatches of music – something's reaching out for them from their collective past.

Once again, Shameless goes all out to satisfy the most obsessive of fans, employing Bido himself to give a brief introduction to the film as well as a more extensive and insightful interview. Also included is an amusing and informative text commentary, along with alternative open sequences, trailers and a gallery.

INTERIORS WITH

A WORLD OF FURNISHING IDEAS

Whilst it's chilly outside it's nice to think that our homes can provide a cosy retreat until the warmer weather arrives. Instead of hiding under vour duvet why not transform your bedroom into a comfy, cosy space to hibernate in?

Bedroom Comfort

A brand new bed can be just the trick to rejuvenate you whilst the mornings are still dark and uninspiring.

This past year has seen extravagant French style bedrooms grace the pages of every interiors magazine. Keep an eye out for furniture with scrolling, over-the-top designs and metallic tints for a baroque inspired

The Alexandria bed from Fishpools ticks all the boxes for the maximum in opulent French luxury. The gorgeous accompanying furniture is available in antique ivory or silver leaf for a more modern twist

To complete the room all you will need is a few rolls of lavish wallpaper and some luxurious bedding.

If French and fancy isn't for you then consider a beautifully crafted wooden bed frame like the Pinehurst collection again from Fishpools. The best thing about a glorious wooden frame is that it will never be out of fashion and will go with almost any colour you choose

To brighten up the space the best colour for the walls would be white as this will reflect all the light in the room and instantly make it feel fresh and clean

To continue the fresh theme use a bright spring-like colour like apple green for the bedding and curtains as this will make the room feel really vibrant. This should also make you feel refreshed when you wake up.

To make the room really comfortable you can't go wrong with a thick carpet in a light colour and a sumptuous rug to create a lovely feeling underfoot.

A few extra cushions and a throw on the bed always make the room look extra inviting and the throw will come in useful during the colder nights! Combine cushions in varying shades of green for a great focal point Whatever room you decide to go for complete with some fresh flowers, these will not only look pretty but will give the room a gorgeous fresh scent.

Make sure you visit Fishpools to get the best out of your bedroom and get lots of inspiration from the many fabulous roomsets on display.

For more information please visit www.fishpools.co.uk or call 01992 63 64 65.

A two-bedroom fairytale cottage in a rural setting

IN the 1850s, a wealthy Victorian shipping merchant constructed a baronial mansion on the ancient site of the former Gilston Park House.

The new Gilston Park House is a tribute to Victorian architecture of the time, harking back to fairytale mansions with imprisoned princesses.

It is a Grade II property and is comfortably set in a tucked-away corner of east Hertfordshire, near the Essex border, converted into splendid homes and apartments by an award-winning developer with a reputation for this kind of work.

The Gamekeepers Cottage is a uniquely styled two-bedroom property, mostly on one level, at the eastern end of the main house.

On the first floor are an entrance hall, cloakroom, living room $(18' \times 14')$ and kitchen $(9'6 \times 9'1)$, the former having a cast-iron Victorian style fireplace and the kitchen an extensive range of units and fittings – a Smeg hob, extractor hood, microwave, fridge-freezer, washer-drier and dishwasher. Going through to the rear hall is completely different.

First of all is the guest bedroom (12'4 \times 9'8) and off that, via a couple of steps, is the en-suite bathroom. Better still is main bedroom (13'6 x 13'6) and its galleried bathroom suite. The hexagonal-shaped room is probably twice as tall as it is wide. The bathroom is quirky, with a claw-footed roll-top bath, hand basin and a separate toilet. The house is ideal for those who like quiet, romantic corners.

The cottage has Calor gas fired heating with radiators, a courtyard terrace and two parking spaces.

The grounds of Gilston Park House extend to about 13 acres, predominantly parkland, with a tennis

The location is indeed rural, but accessible to amenities: the railway station at Harlow is less than three miles away and Junction 7 of the M11 about seven miles.

Three is the magic number

T'S one thing to be in possession of a good product, but it's another thing to recognise that listening to your customers and acting on the feedback is just as important as blowing millions on advertising.

And so it is with BMW and its 3 Series range. The German car maker's incredibly popular and important compact executive motor has, in saloon and estate form, been treated to a mid-life upgrade. The firm has listened to feedback and the result is a familiar car boasting a few choice improvements.

The past few years have seen BMW steal a significant march on its rivals in terms of offering clean, efficient yet powerful engines – petrol and diesel. The latter remains the choice of many, especially in the fleet sector, so it should come as no surprise that the 3.0-litre unit in the 3 Series is all-new and offers a little more of everything: power and economy plus a pleasingly low CO² rating. Of course, not everyone requires a super-potent car like the 330d. In the real world, the 177bhp 320d variant has proven to be the preferred choice of many seeking a sensible mix of performance and economy. The 320d doesn't disappoint, delivering strong acceleration when it counts, high levels of refinement when cruising and more than enough flexibility to make stop-start town driving bearable.

Along the way its official combined economy figure of 58.9mpg and 128CO² rating should help make some significant savings. And if that's not enough, the car's very own stop-start mechanism shuts down the engine when you come to a stop, ensuring more fuel stays in the tank when you're not moving.

In fact, BMW's whole Efficient Dynamics programme has proven to be such a talking point that it not only caught out rival firms but various components of the system will see service in the German company's more expensive cars in over time. Who said saving money was the preserve of the less well off? With all that in mind, it's now acknowledged that nothing really comes close in terms of economy and performance when talk turns to BMW's 3 Series range, and with the help of a few styling and cabin tweaks the gap between it and its rivals has again widened.

They may be subtle, but the changes to the car's exterior do much to keep its appearance fresh. In a clever move, some optical illusion tricks has been deployed to make you think the car is a little longer and, especially at the back, a little wider. Bulking up the car without actually bulking it up is a subtle and convincing way of adding some muscle when the cars around you are adding pounds and inches.

At the front the car's new bonnet adds to the beefier look, while the trademark kidney grilles and lights have been tweaked as part of the refresh. It's the same at the rear-refreshed lights and bumper - while, in profile, the compact BMW now looks a lot tidier and more streamlined. Looking inside and you'd be Looking inside and you'd be forgiven for thinking that nothing had changed. In truth little has; the basic layout and ambience has been left alone and is all the better for it. Look closely and some of the switchgear has been tweaked, but the big news is the introduction of an all-new iDrive display and improved controller complete with useful shortcut buttons.

There's no question that the controller is a welcome upgrade. However, the new display, user interface and features should finally banish the critics for good. Better mapping data with more detail, a more intuitive interface and an overall easier to understand way of navigating betweenthe various features – phone, sat-nav, audio – make it worth the expense.

This is all great news, although it's fair to say that fans of the BMW brand are just as interested in the way the 3 Series drives as they are concerned how easy the car is to own. With the latter covered, the former proves to be just as good as the German firm says it is. Realistically, compact saloons boasting balanced weight distribution and rear-wheel drive will always win in the face of the front-drive opposition. And for all the minor changes, the 3's accomplished on-road behaviour is what the car is all about. Direct, accurate, responsive and rewarding – it's all here.

Factor in a range of superb engines – petrol and diesel – and it's hard to think of anything negative to say. The 320d offers a rounded and affordable ownership experience, the 318d no less so if you're on a budget. The more powerful models serve only to show up the cracks in the opposition and offer a more decadent way of getting from A to B.

The Note: Nissan's perfect pitch?

ON'T you just love management jargon? I used to work for a guy who was forever 'touching base', 'running things up flagpoles' and recognising that the 'squeaky wheels got the

Although it would never admit to it, Nissan would probably like us to adopt one of Dave's other hackneyed terms. When it comes to evaluating a car like the Note dCi, it pays to 'think outside the box'. For eons, the small car market was divided into superminis and family hatches (think Ford Fiesta and Escort). As superminis got bigger and more sophisticated, citycars started slotting in beneath them to fill the vacuum, but this level of niche marketing was still insufficient to fill the demands of a rapidly fragmenting car market. Surprisingly, the answers came from cars like the Renault Espace. Customers enamoured with the practicality and utility of these models demanded those features in ever smaller packages, Mini-MPVs started to become a hot ticket in around 1997, the market kicked off by Renault's Megane Scenic. Even than its rivals and looks very different. Most supermini-MPVs are gimpy-looking things that any person with a few Y chromosomes wouldn't savour being seen in. The Note is different, with a far more dynamic look, a pugnacious wheelat-each-corner stance and some length to its bonnet.

The 1.5-litre dCi engine that powers this version of the Note comes in two variants: the 85bhp unit will do the 0-60mph sprint in 13 seconds and reach a top speed of 104, while the tuned-up 102bhp version has a top speed of 112mph and a 0-60mph time of 11.1 sec

Despite the 102bhp engine's hike in performance, there is no penalty in fuel consumption or emissions, with a combined fuel economy of 55.8mpg. What's more, this engine has a beefy 147lb/ft of torque to rely on, which means it'll pull a loaded vehicle without too much rowing with the gear lever. That's as much as a BMW 320i.

Nissan has claimed that the Note doesn't directly replace the Almera, and in some respects that's true. The idea is that a bigger, more upmarket new-generation Almera will take top-end family hatchback sector sales, leaving the Note to absorb the budget end of the old model's spectrum.

The interior feels very spacious and that's in no small part down to the fact that the 2.60m wheelbase is longer than that of cars like the MK5 VW Golf. This available space can be optimised between luggage and rear passengers with the aid of a sliding rear bench seat as well as the usual folding seat back arrangement. The Note's most interesting feature, however, is the split level luggage bay. Most would never know that beneath a flat loading deck there's a 250mm deep second layer to keep valuables out of the way of prying eyes. Cup holders, bag-holding hooks and umbrella stowing points also hint at the Note's attention to detail.

Four trim levels are offered with this engine. At the base of the range is the VISIA, the VISIA+ pitches in at around £500 more, the ACENTA sits in the middle of the diesel range with the TEKNA at the top.

If you think in straight lines, you won't even have the Note on your shortlist. Open your mind a little and this Nissan makes all kinds of

Scrap

End of the road

for your vehicle?

Responsible drivers scrap their vehicles at an Authorised Treatment Facility (ATF).

That means any pollutants will be made safe before it's recycled in an environmentally a DVLA approved Certificate of Destruction (CoD) A CoD proves that the ATF has told DVLA your vehicle has been scrapped and so is no longer your responsibility, www.direct.gov.uk/motorin

Ideas you can live with

Support Worker Opportunities - Bishops Stortford area & Ugley Recruitment Open Days - Monday 2nd & Tuesday 3rd March 2009

Living life on your own terms is what it's all about. At HFT, we support adults with a range of learning disabilities to do just that. To us it's all about coming up with creative and effective ideas that are as individual as the people they're designed around.

From dunking biscuits over a cup of tea with friends to dunking basketballs down at the local sports centre, everything we do reflects the needs of the people we support. If you can help, we offer full training and great career potential. Want to know more about the range of full and part-time roles on offer? Come and meet us at The Rhodes Centre, 1-3 South Street in Bishops Stortford, on Monday 2nd March (10am - 7pm) or Tuesday 3rd March (10am - 5pm). If you can't make it, call us on 01279 816165. To find out more about these and other roles, visit www.ideasyoucanlivewith.co.uk

See our advert for senior and management roles in next week's press.

SCHOOL CLEANER REQUIRED

Cleaning Staff to work only 3.45pm to 6.15pm. Mon -Fri Term Time and by arrangement during school holidays

To start as soon as possible.

Salary: £12,673 pa pro rata (including fringe allowance) equivalent to £6.57 per hour. 15 hours per week plus holiday allowance.

Applications will be processed immediately upon receipt.

For further details, please contact Mr John Bambury (Caretaker Manager) on 01279 836633.

The Leventhorpe School is committed to safeguarding and promoting the welfare of young people, and expects all staff and volunteers to share this commitment. A CRB disclosure is required for all successful applicants.

REPRESENTA-

ANNE SUMMERS Anne's

Long and short term Placements

You will quickly acquaint yourself with all the major plant on site and take responsibility for compiling and implementing a detailed planned preventative maintenance schedule. You will not only correct any faults but also diagnose their causes and help identify system improvements which enable us to maintain optimum efficiency.

As a result, you'll be a proactive self-starter, ready to step in out of hours at times to provide timely repairs and servicing. You will build strong interpersonal relationships with colleagues across the plant and with our external instrument providers.

The successful applicant will be qualified to ONC/HNC or equivalent with a proven track record in successful diagnostics and fault finding on industrial packaging or process equipment. You will be conversant with PLC control systems and software, electro pneumatic systems and have a meticulous approach to safety standards and adherence to regulations.

To be considered, please write or email, Sue Styles, Organisational Development Manager, Molecular Products Ltd, Mill End, Thaxted, Essex CM6 2LT. Email: ses@molprod.com

THESE are challenging times for us all. But HFT, a charity whose patrons include HRH the Princess Royal, seems to be making light work of these gloomy times.

HFT's work is all about supporting adults with learning disabilities to enjoy their lives, their way. "We can provide support with everything from paying a bill to finding work," says Sandra Forsyth, Service Manager, "it all depends on what a person wants." She adds and developing its "on the whole that tends to be not much different from what the rest of us want: our independence a relationship, a job."

To highlight how HFT helps, Sandra told us about Peter, who is believed to be the oldest person with Down's Syndrome in the UK. "Peter's life-long ambition had been to meet the Queen," she said, "and we were in the fortunate position of being able to arrange for him to attend one of the Queen's garden parties in 2008. It was a one-off, but then so

Over the past two years HFT has been expanding services. The charity has been working with local businesses to provide employment opportunities. "Employers find that people with learning disabilities are able to transfer the skills they have learned with us to their new jobs," says Sandra.

Never one to put the brakes on, HFT is once again adding to its own staff. "We're looking for all kinds" explains Sandra, "people who enjoy being out and about, going shopping, taking in the local attractions or a game of football, and generally lending a hand with everyday living. Experience, would be great, but isn't an issue, as we provide all the training, and even if it's only for a few hours a week, that's going to be good news

Ring the Bell for a 13-race bonanza

Welcome to Inside Track, our column that gives you the reader an insight into Harlow Greyhound Stadium as our top tipster reveals his favourites for tomorrow.

A VARIED 13-race card awaits punters tomorrow night at Harlow Stadium where the marathon contest at 10.01pm is the highlight.

BELL TEMPEST runs in this stamina-sapping event and should be very hard to beat from an ideal trap 6 position.

The selection often runs against some of the best marathon dogs in the country so it should relish this drop to graded company.

ANNIE'S FALCON ran well in a similar race last week and can provide the forecast link.

GOLDIES TARA was an impressive winner for this column last week and there looks no reason why this rapidly improving bitch shouldn't win again at 9.35pm.

She displayed decent early pace when winning and this weapon can prove decisive in this slightly harder contest.

The chances are that she may move away from Harlow to take on the big guns after this race so it may be her last run in graded company. Do not miss out!

Friday February 27 selections:

7.30pm - Larks Assassin

7.44pm - Dods Beauty

7.58pm - Mastermind

8.12pm - Sly Groover

8.26pm - Tain Lynx

8.40pm - Stables Boy

8.54pm - Go Shannon

9.08pm - Pink Positive 9.22pm - Risky Sensation

9.35pm - Goldies Tara

9.48pm - Saorla Blue

10.01pm - Bell Tempest

10.15pm - Ronnies Playboy

Keep it in the family

THE Clark family may have set a Harlow Rugby Club record after four members were part of four separate winning teams over the weekend.

Adam Clark (39) is trying to return from a thumb injury and was a substitute in the fourth team's 43-7 victory over Chingford thirds in the Green King Deuxieme Merit Table Cup quarter-final on Saturday.

His three sons were part of victorious teams on

Flanker James Clark (18) scored a try in Ryan (15) played at inside centre for Harlow U-16s when they triumphed 30-0 at Rochford.

And winger Alfie (10) had his kicking boots on as he slotted two conversions in Harlow U-11s' 14-0 win at Saffron Walden.

Proud dad Adam said: "James and Rvan have both played at the club since seven and Alfie had a rugby ball in his hand when he was in nappies! "He used to sleep with a rugby ball!"

Staines Town remove Hawks

A golden chance came and went for Harlow on 74 minutes. Skipper Mark Taylor was closed down by the home defence as he seemed set to score.

Hasell saved superbly from Howard Newton's shot before Staines broke the deadlock when a long throw by McDonald was met by Gordon's glancing header.

"They did not cause us too many problems," added too many problems, added Alzapiedi.

HARLOW TN: Hasell, Taylor, Bardle, Wolf, Stewart, Berry (Gliddon 69), Lalite, Hall, Crace, Ellerbeck (Frendo 62), Green (Okojie 78). Subs not used: Webster, Stone (gk). Att: 150.

THERE was disappointment for new skipper Mark Taylor as Hawks were well beaten on his 200th game for the club.

Runaway premier division leaders Dover Athletic were far too strong for a below-par Harlow Town side on Saturday. Striker Ricci Crace and centre-half Danny Wolf made their home debuts for Glen Alzapiedi's men.

Harlow were to rue a great chance after barely 70 seconds. A neat one-two between Taylor and striker John Frendo left the full-back clear but his shot grazed the top of the bar.

The Kent side took the lead on 14 minutes when a long throw from Shaun Welford caused mayhem in the home box. Dean Hill had a shot blocked before Lee Browning fired home from close range.

Browning's shot hit the bar midway through the first half after another Welford throw had the Hawks defence at sixes and sevens.

But the striker made no mistake when he scored his and his side's second goal on 29 minutes. Welford slipped the ball through to Browning who chipped Hawks keeper James Hasell from just out-

Alzapiedi rang the changes at half-time. He brought on Dee Okojie and Danny Green as Chris Ellerbeck and Shaun Gliddon paid the price for the team's inept first-half performance.

And Harlow halved the deficit on 59 minutes. Okojie's right-wing centre from virtually on the byline was nodded in at the near post by Crace for his first Harlow goal.

But the hosts failed to seize this opportunity as Dover grabbed a third from the penalty spot less than 120 seconds later.

Wolf felled Welford and Frannie Collin smashed the spotkick into the bottom left. I thought it was a soft penalty," fumed Alzapiedi.

The visitors grabbed a fourth on 76 minutes when Collin smashed in a second penalty. This was awarded for Sam Berry's needless hand-ball in the box.

Taylor was denied a goal on his 200th appearance when his low free-kick was well saved by Dover's on-loan Millwall keeper Preston Edwards near the end.

It was Harlow's first home league defeat since Alzapiedi took over and the heaviest loss at Barrows Farm this season.

"We were under pressure for long periods. That's not to say we did not defend well or they would have beaten us by a lot more," said Alzapiedi.
"What particularly disappointed me was that we did not counter attack enough. That's something to work on. But we will not come up against a team as good as them every week. They [Dover] are not 15 points clear by chance.

Club mourns death of ex-player at

A MINUTE'S silence was held for ex-Harlow Town player Dougie Smith before the Hawks' home match against Dover

Smith, left, played in the same Harlow side as former favourites Dudley Baker and Les Champelovier.

He was 68 when he died of a heart attack at his home in North Grove, Harlow, on February 14. Smith originally played for his home town club Ruislip Manor before switching to Harlow Town after he moved to the area.

A passionate supporter of local football for more than 40 years, he used to always watch Standards in the Essex Intermediate League, and later when the club became Nortel.

A stalwart for Marquis Sports in the Harlow & District Sunday League, he was involved with the club for 26 years and served as its vice-chairman for six years up until his death.

Harlow spokesman said: "He was a football man through and through and will be sorely missed throughout the football community."

His funeral will take place at

North Weald on Wednesday

He leaves a wife, Julie, and two children.

> Its blueprint set out to target conduct and discipline among players, managers and coaches to make sure they toe the line in relation to referees

Officials also have to follow strict

Respect was introduced amidst much clamour at the professional end of the game at the start of the season to try and halt the huge number of referees from turning their back on the beautiful game

Players now shake hands with officials and their opponents prior to kick-off. This can be seen from Old Trafford down to Harlow Town's Ryman premier division matches at Barrows Farm.

At 72 years of age. Harlow referee Peter Hanger has shown age is no barrier to being a respected referee.

He began refereeing 43 years ago after he broke his leg while playing and was forced to end his career.

Hanger likes the link that captains have with referees but stresses that officials must show more respect to players.

'The ref thing with the captain is a good thing as it builds a rapport but the respect works three ways. The ref has to have respect for the teams, a team to their opponents and the teams to the ref," he said. "I make sure I arrive in plenty of time and introduce myself and familiarise myself with the ground. I will also not tolerate swearing and I make that clear and it is also important to be in the right frame of mind."

He added: "Youngsters coming into refereeing can be intimidated at first but if they can get through the initial period they will come through it.

"I love refereeing and keeping in touch with younger people. The refs make what they believe is the right decision and they have to do it immediately. The players do not understand that."

Terry Rackley is vice-chairman of the Harlow & District Football League and also referees ever Sunday. He is also chairman of the Harlow Referees

The Respect campaign has not yet filtered down to the Harlow league

And Rackley feels that abuse towards officials has increased a bit in the last few years despite huge publicity surrounding the campaign.

"I would say that abuse has gone up marginally. Referees do not want to put up with it. It's how you deal with it," Rackley said.

"Some teams do not like certain referees. You have to have man-management skills."

He added: "In Sunday leagues you can have a situation where you have senior league players who play on a Saturday who can try it on with a 20-yearold ref and use gamesmanship.

"You need to be firm from the start and set your stall out early or things get out of hand.

The 53-year-old stressed that it is important that officials distinguish between a lack of respect and a player becoming frustrated if a match is not going

"There is a difference between frustration and dissent. With frustration you have a word in the player's ear and then a public warning and then a booking," he explained.

"With dissent you give a yellow card. Everyone has a tolerance level. Some will allow more than others." The FA is well meaning in their intentions but trying to bring greater discipline through officialdom is not

McClarnon, who started her rugby career with Harlow Rugby Club's minis rugby team, now plays for Saracens Ladies second team. She has also captained the East Region and Essex at U-16, U-17 and U-18 level

She was chosen after a three-day national team trial at Lilleshall in Shropshire last week.

McClarnon, who is studying an NVQ in hairdressing at Harlow College, said: "There were three hookers going for the squad and two of them had been in last year's squad.

"I really gave it my all. I was really shocked when I got in. I have been trying for three years and I am really looking forward to the game.

Her father Tony McClarnon, who used to coach his daughter, said: "It's brilliant news. She works very hard. She does her club training, training with her conditioning coach and also with an elite training camp."

Kick off for academy

MORE than 140 youngsters flocked to a Harlow sports cen-run by West Ham United FC.

Kids from five up to 7years-old enjoyed Friday's event at the Norman Booth Leisure Centre in Old Harlow.

The session was held to launch the Hammers' new academy, which will be based permanently at the Elderfield

Jim Hampsheir, the head of the pre-academy section at the Barclays Premiership club, selected a number of talented young footballers who will now attend weekly coaching sessions at the Norman Booth. "It went very well. We were really pleased. All the kids seemed to enjoy it," said

It was due to last two-and-a-half hours but ran beyond four hours, such was the popularity of the event. The youngsters practised various skills before series of matches were played inside and outdoors in the afternoon

The West Ham academy will now meet every Friday. It is run by former Bristol Rovers player Colin Williams, who is a Hammers coach and also manager of the Harlow Town U-18

The Hammers, who run soccer academies across Essex, Norman Booth Hampsheir was impressed with the venue which has recently completed a £230,000 transformation.

Potter Street suffer defeat

POTTER Street went down 3-1 at Mountnessing Boca in the premier division of the Essex Olympian Football League on Saturday.

In the Essex Premier Cup quarter-final, Epping lost 3-0 at Hutton.

Sawbridgeworth Town fought back to draw 2-2 at Hullbridge Sports despite only having 10 men at that stage.

The Robins lost a man near the end when Tom Day went off injured on Tuesday.

However, Raich Fraser made it 2-2 with his second goal.

Heaviest defeat for Rams

A WEAKENED Harlow side were unable to resist league leaders Rochford and slumped to their heaviest league defeat this season.

The Rams, without Lee Harron, were further weakened after 20 minutes of Saturday's clash when fly-half James McFerran went off with a knee injury. This left an inexperienced Rams back line.

Harlow went behind to a Tom Ashton penalty after two minutes, but the visitors hit back and both Simon Vanbeck

Harlow 5

(RFU London division three north east) and skipper Paul Eynon went close. Ashton then kicked a penalty to put Rochford 11-0 up. Alan Barker broke from a line-out for a converted try. Sam Barnes and

George Chivers went over for unconverted tries to put the hosts 28-0 ahead at the break. Barker drove over another converted try early on in the second half before almost the whole pitch for a try. Ashton converted.

Barnes and sub Matt Norris bagged unconverted tries for 52-0.

Evnon intercepted a pass and ran 60 yards for an unconverted try

But Rochford scored converted tries through Dan Needham and Andy Baker to complete a comprehensive win. HARLOW: Webb, Vanbeck, Bowering, Powell, Grimley, McFerran (Mills 20), Woodington, Ephgrave Wilkins, Prindiville (Webb 55). Hawkins, Twiner, Bowering (Cootes 45), Roberts, Eynon.

Staines remove Late goal denies Alzapiedi's men

RYMAN LEAGUE Up to & incl Tue Feb 24 Premier Division

GLEN Alzapiedi is looking for his Hawks side to wipe out the memory of losing to a late goal at Staines Town by beating the two bottom sides Hendon and Heybridge Swifts in a crucial fourday period.

But Alzapiedi, the Hawks boss, says the next two away league games - on Saturday and Tuesday - are vital. "These are two difficult games but I believe we can them. We have 15 games left and if we win six more that will get us near to 50 which should make us safe," Alzapiedi said.

Staines Tn 1, Harlow Tn 0

(Ryman League, premier division)

Harlow hope to re-sign a midfielder today (Thursday), thought to be James Pegram.

Alzapiedi will be without utility player Shaun Gliddon for the next two games because of work commitments.

Midfielder Sam Berry sustained a head injury in a challenge with Staines midfielder Darti Brown on 69 minutes, leaving the former needing 14 stitches. Berry was already set to miss the Hendon and Heybridge games because of a skiing holi-Midfielder Leon Lalite made his 250th club appearance against Staines. Harlow battled hard before going down to an 84th-minute winner from home skipper Danny Gordon.

Alzapiedi said: "I thought we played very well. We defended well and it was disappointing not to get a result."

Midfielder Ryan Hall, brother of QPR defender Fitz Hall, was given a first-team debut after playing for Harlow reserves in a 7-2 league win at Ware last Thursday.

Against Staines, Hawks goalkeeper James Hasell kept his side in the game with two decent first-half saves.

He blocked a Scott Taylor shot on 17 minutes and beat away Dave Sargent's penalty with a low save to his right on 23 minutes.

The spotkick was awarded after Laurie Stewart handled a long throw into the box by Jon

Second for Osagie in Celtic Cup contest

ANDREW Osagie was just off his personal best time as the indoor athletics season ended with a second place for him at the Celtic Cup in Wales at the weekend. The Harlow Athletic Club ace clocked 1:49.99 in the 800m in Cardiff, just off his best of 1:49.03. Osagie, of Northbrooks, turned 21 last week.

He will now continue training ahead of the outdoor season which begins in April.
